

Booklovers

You love to read, and we love to help you locate new and interesting reading materials!

Did you know Middletown Thrall Library has many free and special services available just for you? Check out our growing list of services below!

Booklovers Web Guide (thrall.org/booklovers) – Our Booklovers web guide has links to websites especially of interest to readers. With book clubs, reading groups, book discussions, reviews, reading advisories and more, there's plenty here for you to explore! We also offer members of Thrall Library an individualized reading plan service through our Booklovers website: tell us what you like to read, and we'll e-mail you some suggestions!

Reader's Advisory Center – Located beside the Reference Desk is a special collection of reading guides selected to help you locate books and authors you might enjoy. Regardless of your age or interests, there is something here for everyone!

RAVES! Reader's Advisory – Thrall's very own online reader's advisory service. Use it to discover fresh and different books and authors, to suggest titles to other readers, and to comment on books already in the database. You can also find out if a book is available in the catalog so you can reserve it or come to the library and check it out.

eBooks (thrall.org/ebooks) – Library members can now freely download books and audio books as well as music. For more details check out our website!

Novelist (thrall.org/databases) – Novelist is a database that can help you locate books and authors based on ones you like. For more on Novelist please speak with a librarian. Login using your Thrall Library card.

Literature on the Web (thrall.org/literature) - Catch up on classics, delve deeper into stories with literary criticism, and do more through this guide.

Books in Print, Patron Edition (thrall.org/databases) - Find bibliographic information for over 5 million book, audio book, and video titles in this database, or browse by subject, author, or book awards. Login using your Thrall Library card.

FictionConnection (thrall.org/databases) - Books in Print's own reader's advisory service. Login first to Books in Print Patron Edition and then select FictionConnection. Browse by topic, but be quick because the menus cycle through many different topics!

Also check out our free-standing thematic book display near the library catalog computers for more interesting reading selections. If you have any questions or need any help finding books to read, please stop by the Reference Desk.
